ABOUT ME

I believe everyone has a story worth telling.

For over twenty years I've helped people, businesses and communities grow through communication, connection and learning. My career has taken me from managing national client accounts worth over £1.2 million to becoming an independently published author, inspirational speaker and workshop facilitator.

Since publishing Katie – A New Chapter in 2020, I have dedicated my work to inspiring confidence, resilience and authentic living through storytelling. My books, workshops and keynote talks have reached schools, businesses, charities, prisons and public sector organisations, encouraging people to believe in themselves and embrace new possibilities.

Whether I'm facilitating a creative writing workshop, delivering a keynote speech or building relationships with clients, my passion remains the same—helping people recognise their potential and write their own next chapter.

A LITTLE MORE ABOUT ME

When I'm not writing, you'll usually find me reading, walking, enjoying live music, visiting the theatre or dancing. I believe creativity, curiosity and kindness are at the heart of both personal and professional growth.

My mission is simple:

To help people discover confidence, tell their story and believe that every new chapter is full of possibility.
